Greetings from the Editor-in-Chief

At epilepsy.com, we strive to bring you information and advice you need and can use every day. This newsletter helps connect us to you.

This month, our newsletter focuses on several different places that might be important to you or your children. First, we take you and your kids to the world of summer camp and provide tips on how to help your kids have the most fun possible. Second, we go to the workplace and discuss employment issues for people with epilepsy. Third, we give you links to doctors conducting clinical research on new epilepsy treatments.

We love feedback at epilepsy.com. Send us your suggestions for future newsletters to:

Talk to you next month!
